0 - Marvin Marvin on America's Got Talent

Marvin appears on stage with 10 other 2nd grade kids carrying recorders. He carries an electric guitar.

HOWARD STERN: What have we got here?

MARVIN: I'm Marvin Marvin from North Falls, California. And these are my 2nd grade buds, The Joy Bubbles.

HOWIE MANDEL: School of Rock ripoff huh?

SHARON OSBOURNE: Stop that Howie!

HOWARD: You're not even on the show anymore.

SHARON: Only for this sketch. Go ahead & perform.

Marvin rocks on the guitar while his buddies play the recorder...

MARVIN: (Singing) I was a boy with troubles, now I got joy bubbles! Now I'm feeling down, now my feet don't ever touch the ground. I was a boy with troubles

(Howie buzzes)

Now I got joy bubbles. When I feel like I could cry, I just think happy thoughts & reach for the sky!

The kids play a recorder solo.

MARVIN: (Resumes singing) I was a salad without a crouton,

(Sharon buzzes)

An atom without a neutron. a sumpsong with a muton. A boy so far away, from New Jersey!

(Howard buzzes & the stage turns red).

HOWARD: How dare you insult New Jersey with that song? New Jersey hadn't been insulted since their picante sauce.

SHARON: Salad without a crouton? Silly lyrics, Ozzy would spit on you.

HOWIE: I'd rather hear Ex-Cel Dude's music than yours.

MARVIN: But we worked hard!

HOWARD: Go and annoy Disney Channel for a change. It's a no from me. Sharon...

SHARON: Before I go back to CBS Daytime, it's a No for me as well.

HOWIE: If you were on my previous show, you'd win a penny. It's a NO as well.

Marvin talks like Fred in disgust as he & the kids leave the stage.
