Chapter 1 - Death of Yuki

1 - Death of Yuki

"Is that a shooting star?" ... "Of course not! My mommy said they aren't real!"
"Oh! Are you sure about that?" ... "Yep! Let's go eat some popcorn now!" ... "Sure thing."

"I can't believe he's dead." Nuka silently whispered to herself. She just came back from her best friend's funeral. His name was Yuki. He was her best friend... and sort of... her only friend. Nuka wiped the tears from her eyes. "I thought we were going to be... Best friends forever." She said between sobs. Nuka remembered... How he died.

"You want me to change the song? What the heck." Nuka said to Yuki. "If you don't change it, I'll tickle you." Nuka stared blankly at him. "Yeah right. Don't forget, we both just turned sixteen. Don't be so embarrassing." Yuki looked away. "Hmph, I never any fun with you." Then they both glanced at each other. Then they started laughing together. "Let's go for a ride in my car." Yuki told her. Nuka nodded okay and they both walked to the car. It was brand new too. So shiney and smooth. Yuki opened the passenger seat for her. When Yuki went inside the driver seat, he reached into his pocket. "Man, I forgot the stupid keys... I'll be right back." Yuki walked to his house. When Nuka turned her head to tell him 'okay' he was gone." It was to quick for him to be in the house, Yuki's house was one block away. Nuka came out of the car. "Yuki, are you almost back?" She then started walking the way to his house. Suddenly, she gasped.

"Oh...oh... my... God." She saw it. She really saw it. His body lay on the ground. Soaked with blood. Nuka started running around the neighborhood screaming, "HELP!" Neighbors came out of their doors, looking annoyed, and worried. Then they called the police and they came...

"I remember..." "I wish he was back. I just feel so lonely..." Her mom suddenly knocked on her door. "Honey, someone's here to see you. It's Yuki's mother." Nuka wiped her glossy eyes again and went down to the door." There, was his mother, holding back tears. "I'm so sorry this happened..." Nuka said looking deeply into his mother's sad eyes. "It's fine..." his mom said. Then she quietly walked away. 'What did she come here for?' Nuka thought to herself, then closed the door.
