

The Adventures of Guado Buono Palipia

By KirbyFannatic

Submitted: July 19, 2005

Updated: July 19, 2005

Guado has it very hard in his life. He has to do all of these quests. Will they ever stop?

Provided by Fanart Central.

<http://www.fanart-central.net/stories/user/KirbyFannatic/17664/The-Adventures-of-Guado-Buono-Palipia>

Chapter 1 - Adventure #1	2
Chapter 2 - Adventure #2	4

1 - Adventure #1

"Adventure #1 of Guado Buono Palipia"

Guado had a very hard life. When he was seven, he wished that he would have some friends, but he never did. Kids made fun of his name, because in their language, Guado Buono Palipia means "doesn't know anything". He is now twelve and his days go like this: he gets up, he eats breakfast, he goes to school by walking (they are about fifty-seven miles away from his school), he gets a detention for being late, he goes home, does his homework, gets in trouble by his parents for getting a detention at school, and then goes to bed. He has very depressing days.

Although he gets made fun of, he gets very good grades. His average report card grades are all hundred percents. One day, he got so mad, that he made one of the bullies have to go to the hospital because Guado gave him broken bones in his legs, arms, shoulders, and knees. When he got home, he got in trouble by his parents of course. They put him in time out for two hours! Every day, he gets put in time out for a half an hour for his detentions. He doesn't even deserve all of this but he gets it. One day, he found out that if somebody found a hard, moon-like house, them and any number lower than seven people would be on the newspaper. Since he doesn't get treated nicely, he would take his five imaginary friends.

He went on a journey to find the house but the bullies did too. When they found each other, they fought. Of course, Guado won the battle and sent the bullies home. He knew that when he gets home, he would be in very big trouble. Guado didn't care if he got in trouble because he is so use to it. He found many things that were hard and moon-like, but none of the things were houses. The bullies finally got back from their houses. They searched all around for Guado because they were ready to beat him up. They finally found him and ran to him. They said "After all that you have done to us, we will never forgive you. Instead we will battle you, and we will win this time." When Guado heard this, he didn't believe what he just heard. "You actually what to fight me again??! If you're sure, I will happily fight you." So, they fought and Guado won again. He sent them looking in a different spot. It was nine twenty-three at night and Guado was tired, so he got his sleeping bag and went to bed.

The next day, Guado got up, went to the bathroom, and then went on searching for the house. He found a log that had a carving on it that said, "there is a hard, moon-like house near the Hindus Canyon. Someone named Bovolar lives there." After he read it, he went on to find the Hindus Canyon. It was between two and three o'clock at night when he found it. When he went in the house, he found a broken medal.

Then, Bovolar came and said, "Don't you dare touch that! It is an antique!" Bovolar was so mad when he said that, that it looked like he was going to literally explode. He looked at Guado with an extremely mad look on his face. Confused, Guado just listened and didn't touch it. Guado asked if he could have the prize of being on the newspaper with below seven friends. Bovolar had no idea what Guado was talking about. "What is that from?" asked Bovolar. Guado didn't know why Bovolar didn't know what it was. Just then the bullies came in and said that if somebody doesn't give them the prize, then they would force it to be theirs. Bovolar told Guado that he would take it from there. Guado didn't believe that Bovolar would say that after Guado beat up the bullies three times in a row! Guado just let it go anyway. Bovolar battled the bullies then, five seconds later, sent all four of them home with broken bones in their back and legs.

Then, Bovolar gave Guado a slip that read in green-highlighted blue ink: Guado has Bovolar's permission to be able to bring him and six or lower friends on the newspaper and he can make it say WHAT EVER HE WANTS IT TO!

Signed,
Bovolar

He said, "Guado, take this. It will let you be on the newspaper with six or lower friends. Thanks for coming to my house. I still don't know what this is about, but I believe you." So, Guado thanked Bovolar and went back to his hometown. He went to the place on the screen (18542 N. Velino Avenue Thert, Vitonu 26394). Guado, after six hours, found the place that he was looking for. He asked if he could have the prize after he showed them the letter. They said yes. Guado said, "Yes, now my imaginary friends (Katty, Jeorge, Guwado, Natoy, and Violetae) and I can be on the newspaper with whatever we want the words to say.

He and his friends were on the newspaper and it read: I wish I had some real friends but I don't. Will SOMEBODY be my friend? If you do, then next time something like this happens to me, then you can also be in it (maybe). After people read the newspaper they all wanted to be friends with him, especially the bullies because Guado beat them up easily so they thought that he was very strong. Then, Guado had friends coming out of everywhere, and he wasn't teased or in trouble anymore. Except from his parents for having detentions and for beating up the children and teacher for being late to school. That is adventure #1 of Guado Buono Palipia.

2 - Adventure #2

"Adventure #2 of Guado Buono Palipia"

On the last adventure of Guado Buono Palipia, Guado wants to be treated nicely, and he succeeded his goal. After he did succeed his goal, he went out to find something to do except, for being everybody's friend and having to listen to it, so he went to a place called "Vibravent X-treme Zaotics" which means "very extreme things" because he was called to do a task. When he got there, he found somebody named Madrick. Madrick was a nice person. Guado then said in a kind of scared voice, "Excuse me, but I'm looking for a task to take from a person in here." "What task are you looking for?" asked Madrick. "I'm looking for a task called "Charles Tag at Vibravent," said Guado.

So, Madrick then figured out that Guado is the one that he called. "You want to do the task I gave you?" asked Madrick. "Yes," said Guado. Charles Tag at Vibravent is where you collect 100-1,000,000 coins in a limited time (usually 1-5minutes time). Guado tried it (he had to collect 509,632 coins in 3 1/2 minutes). He did it, and made a very weird-wish. He wished that he wouldn't have anymore friends than the ones he had. So every time he went outside, he had exactly ten friends. He thanked Madrick, and went on with his adventure. Someone called him again and said, "Guado, we need your help. There is a very big monster near where we are.

We need to destroy it somehow, so we called you to defeat him, if you could. Please respond and call our number, 555-4535, so you can tell us if and when you will come. Call as soon as you can, because this monster is very mad, not to mention hungry." "Okay, I'm coming to save you. I'll be there very soon. Maybe say, around five minutes or less, okay?" said Guado. Guado went to find "Big Bane's Den of Doom", which is the monster's nickname and its den. He went inside a long, long, long tunnel, and found a maze. The maze had two mile-high walls, and was about a mile long and a mile wide. He went through the maze, found his way out in six hours, and continued on with his journey. It was only a mile walk before he found a cave that was literally as dark as if the sun and all the other light disappeared for all eternity. Not even a flashlight could light up the cave or even a germ of it.

That was because the cave had light absorbers. Even if you brought the sun in the cave, the sun's light would be absorbed. So, he had to feel his way through the cave, which was not easy at all. In ten hours, he found his way out and once again and continued on his journey to find Big Bane and his den. After he walked two miles, he finally found the monster's den. He went inside and found something very creepy. There were skulls everywhere and bones and even teeth were scattered in all directions. Guado didn't like the looks of this place but he made a promise to kill the beast. It wasn't too long before the person called for help again. "Help! I'm right here with the monster! I'm afraid that if I move, the monster will eat me! UH OH! IT HEARS ME! HELP! HELP," as his voice got softer, "Help-me". His voice disappeared. "Oh my!" Guado yelled. "That monster just ate the person who called me, and that is HORRABLE!!!!!!!" Guado couldn't believe what he just heard. He heard bones cracking and bones falling to the ground with all of the other bones. "How am I going to find the monster now? Since the monster is somewhere in this den and no person can call me to inform me of where the monster is, how am I suppose to know where he is?" All of a sudden, a big huge tomb came out of the ground slowly but straight. A voice came out of nowhere and said in a very, very deep voice, "I you go through this tomb, you will find a shortcut to the monster.

If you don't go through this tunnel, then good luck trying to find the monster." The voice echoed for three seconds after he said "monster". Guado didn't know if he should believe the guy who said that, or if he should try looking for it without the shortcut. Which one should he do? He chose the tomb, but was it a wise choice? Unfortunately, he didn't think about it too long, so he didn't know if it was a good choice. All he cared about was to find and kill that dreadful dragon. (Dreadful dragon doesn't mean the monster is a dragon, it means the monster eats people without caring who it is). The tomb, which was very long, could have up to five billion people in it and if it had any more than that, it would literally explode into as many pieces as there are people in it!

There was only Guado in the tomb, so he didn't have to worry about that. In 1 1/2 hours, he found the shortcut to the monster. He went through the shortcut and found his way out in one minute when he came out of the tomb, he saw the monster. The monster surprisingly was a dragon. It had twenty rows of millions of teeth, the dragon was brown with a green stomach, he was one hundred feet tall, his weight was seven hundred pounds, and his claws were sharper than the sharpest thing on earth. (Our earth). There was blood and bones everywhere! Guado didn't know what to do to kill the monster.

Then, he remembered all the skulls and their dents. The dragon used the front row of his teeth. Guado thought that if he removed the front row of the dragon's teeth and all of the dragon's claws, that he might actually be able to kill the dragon. So, he went to the dragon, waited until the dragon came to Guado, jumped on the dragon's arm, ripped out his front row of teeth, went to the claws, ripped the claws out on both arms, and went back down to the ground. The dragon roared with anger and flew all across its dungeon in pain.

When the dragon came back down, a sword that read, "The One Who Holds This Sword Will Be Protected And Will Have Great Power," appeared out of the ground. Guado picked up the sword, got close to the dragon, and used the sword to slash the dragon in half, and he was sure that the dragon was dead. Once he killed the dragon, an exit appeared out of nowhere. Guado went through the exit and once he got out, shut it, so no one or thing could get out into the outside.

People were waiting outside for him to congratulate him for defeating the horrible monster. They made lemonade, cookies, and his favorite, thorrall berries. His family, his friends, the bullies, and other people were waiting for him. They all said, "Three cheers for Guado. Hip-hip hooray. Hip-hip hooray. Hip-hip hooray." Guado was so amazed that they came. He enjoyed his time of nice thorrall berries. That is Adventure #2 of Guado Buono Palipia.