1 - Fang

Chapter 1

Sakura Linden Lea is the princess of the Earth kingdom. She is twelve, smart, and great with a sword. Her and her horse could take down 50 men in one hour if they tried. She is also heir to the lovely kingdom her mother runs now, or as it is known as, the Earth House. She is a talented girl, and brave for her age. Everyone says that she takes after her mother, but few say she takes after her father who died in combat 2 years ago. Only a few remember her father because he wasn't one of the greatest kings, nor was he trying to be.

The guard, Horsh, stayed right beside Sakura because Sakura's mother commanded him to. Many say it is because the queen wishes for them to marry, but Sakura will never accept even if he killed over one hundred men for her. They rode down the rocky path to the castle beside each other on their horses. "Sakura I hear someone coming," Horsh warned. "I hear it to Horsh, but do not be alarmed. If you are alarmed the thing following us will attack, and have the advantage," She just stared ahead. "It's really dark out, I can't see anything. I think we should trout home," His voice was worried. "Don't worry. I just want to stay out a little longer." "Yes your highness," He mumbled something under his breath. Sakura turned around, and started to trout the opposite way from the castle. Horsh did the same still mumbling. "My name is Sakura Linden Lea, heir to the Earth House. Identify yourselves now!" She stopped in the center of the pathway. A pale-skinned boy walked out from behind a rock to the side. His hair was black, and so were his eyes. "A vampire I see. Who are you kind sir," Horsh said having his horse block Sakura. "My name is Fang, and I am heir to the kingdom on Vampire's Rock," He looked straight at Sakura. Sakura got off her horse and walked over to him. "Why were you following us," She said in a calm voice. "I was only following you; I have no use for him. The reason, if you must know, is that I have a question to ask you. My parents have invited the princess of the kingdom of the Earth House to come to the Vampire ball. I myself and a few others will be your guard. I will make sure they do not hurt you in any way. If I try, they will stop me, or we all get our heads chopped off," He smiled showing his fangs. She smiled and nodded, "I will ask mother if I can go. She will say no, but I have Horsh here to make it where I can go." He nodded, and turned into a bat. He flew off at light speed. "Horsh let us go home now," Sakura jumped back on her horse and trotted as fast as her horse could go.

2 - Part 2 (idk)

Chapter 2

"No Sakura you are not going to a ball filled with vampires!" Mother shouted. "But mother I will be fine. The prince of their castle will be guarding me, and others. I will bring my sword and I will be safe," I complained. My mother shook her head, "Nothing I say will stop you so you may go." I ran over to her and hugged her, "Thank you so much." She pushed me off her, and walked to her room. "Princess may I remind you that he never told you the time of the ball," Horsh smiled. "It's tomorrow night. An invite is received one day before the party. It's just how the handbook states it," I walked out of the throne room. "Well okay you win, but if they try to bite you_" "I will take my sword and kill them all," I interrupted him. He nodded. "I'm going to sleep now Horsh do not interrupt me," "Yes Sakura," He opened the door to my room. I walked in and laid down on my bed. Horsh closed the door and he left into the throne room. I heard a soft tapping on my window; I got up. I looked out my window to see the vampire we saw before flying in bat form. I opened my window and he flew in. He changed to his human form looking at me. "Why are you here?" I looked solemnly at him. "I am here to warn you that my mother and father have set this up for you to be bitten," His voice was low. "Why are you warning me?" "Because there is no reason for you to get bitten," He grabbed my arm. "I understand, but I must go. My mother said that I could and now she will force me to go." "I will protect you. I am suppose to guard you from getting bitten am I not?" He winked at me. I rolled my eyes, "I guess I can trust you, but you come anywhere close to my neck and I will cut your head off with my sword." He smiled, "Yes your highness." I laughed a little but had to stop. "Horsh is coming hide, and don't go yet," I said calmly. He nodded and turned to a bat. I saw him fly out the window but not leave far. "Your highness I just wanted to say good night and sweet dreams," His voice was shaky. "I told you not to disturb me now leave!" I yelled smiling at myself. Horsh's footsteps left the hall and Fang came back in. I smiled as he turned back to human. "What would happen if I did bite you, if you don't mind me asking?" He was frowning. "I'd kill you then kill myself to protect my family and my kingdom," I looked at my bed. He grabbed my hand, and kissed it. "Then I won't bite you," He whispered. I smiled, "Good because I don't know if I could kill myself. If I had to kill myself then I am sure I could, but not if my mother didn't want me to." "You and your mother must be very close." "No we hardly talk. She is always busy and bossy. She hardly cares for me," I looked into his eyes, and I felt my heart stop. He looked away from me, "Forgive me I am cursed with these eyes." His eyes were death themselves. They could have killed me. "It's okay I'm fine," I felt my heart beating again. "No, I am sorry. I hate being cursed with these eyes! Only one with powerful magic can remove the curse and I haven't met a wizard or a witch that could." I grabbed his hand, "Close your eyes." He closed his eyes and calmed down. I started humming a strange tune. "Open your eyes now," I worried. He opened them and looked at me. I looked into his eyes and smiled, "I think your eyes are fine now. They are still black, but I can tell they no longer have the curse on them." He kissed my cheek, "Forgive me for that. I know I am not suppose to kiss the princess." I blushed, "It is okay, but you must leave now for the sun is starting to come up." He nodded and flew out the window turning into a bat. I jumped on my bed and fell asleep.

3 - Is it the end?

Chapter 3

I woke up at night, and worried. "Oh thank gosh you are alive we almost thought you died. You wouldn't wake up no matter what we did!" Horsh was sitting in a wooden chair beside my bed. "What time is it?" I sat up. "Thirty minutes past ten," He looked confused. "Leave my room I have a ball to get ready for, remember," I stood up. "Yes milady," He got up, and left my room. I looked around to make sure no one was watching. I looked under my bed and found my black dress. It was long, tight, and it looked gothic. I looked through my dressers and found my black tiara. I slipped my clothes on, "Horsh I will be leaving, but I want no one to see me that includes you. Clear the path to the entrance and make sure no one sees me!" I yelled making sure Horsh heard me. "Yes milady," He hollered back. Twenty minutes later, I left my room. I went to the entrance and made sure no one saw as I left the castle. I went and got my black horse from its stable, "Hey Midnight are you ready to go to Vampire's Rock?" The horse nodded its head. I jumped onto her back and I rode off to the kingdom of vampires. I saw many witches and vampires on the way there and they all looked at me as if I were crazy. "Midnight do you think this is a good idea?" I looked at her solemnly. "Well milady it would appear so," She spoke back. I nodded, "Okay, but I might half to take that spell off you because you might speak in front of my mother." "Milady I won't don't worry," She stopped in front of a mountain. "Be good and run home. I will send a flutter to you when I need to come back." Midnight nodded and ran off. I looked at the mountain and knocked on it three times. "Password," A scratchy voice said. "I have no password only an invite from the queen and king from here," I closed my eyes. The mountain opened at the bottom a little. "Princess Sakura you came. It is a pleasure to finally meet you," The scratchy voice said. I walked in and saw many vampires looking at me. "Leave her alone," I heard Fang's voice from the other side of the room. Everyone cleared a path and he walked to me, "You look nice tonight." I smiled, "I had to try and fit in here." He grabbed my hand and led me to his mother and father. "Mother, father this is the princess of the Earth House. She knows of you wanting to bite her, and I will not allow of it." I heard many gasps in the background. "Fine then you will bite her!" His mother boomed. "Excuse me! I am not going to be bitten!" I heard my voice over everyone else's. "You came here and it is a tradition for the one that is not a witch or vampire to be bitten," His father said in a low voice. "Look into you son's eyes," I whispered. "It will kill us!" The mother shouted. "Fang look at me then," I grabbed his arm. He turned to me and swallowed. I looked into his eyes and almost fell over. "You put the curse on him again. Why do you give your son with such pain," I said still looking into his eyes. "Because he is soon to be king, and we want him to kill with just the look of his eyes," The mother smiled. I grabbed Fang's hand, "I will not allow this treatment." I closed my eyes and let my magic go through him. I opened my eyes and felt that the curse was lifted. "My magic is stronger then yours. Leave his eyes how he wants them. He doesn't want to kill by just looking at someone," I looked at them. The mother was speechless. "You looked straight into my son's eyes even with the spell on his eyes," The father said. "You took my spell off my son!" The mother yelled. Even more gasps came. "Flame of Light and Dark of Death are my powers. You should know them because they are the strongest of magic," I let go of Fang's hand when I remembered I was holding it. I heard everyone gasp that time, and many faint. "You have magic from both sides, but that would mean you mother and father wasn't the queen and king of the Earth house! Your parents were Hillary and Matt!" The mother exclaimed. I nodded and smiled, "You are learning." My eyes lit up one being a bright light and one being a dark light. "Fang and everyone leave," I yelled getting through from what was happening. "You heard her mother leave now. Father protect mother! Ever leave now!" Fang yelled. "Fang you must go to," I said as everyone was leaving. "I'm not leaving!" He yelled and grabbed my arm. I let out a yell of pain, "Leave before it happens! You must go!" I shoved him off me and used my magic to push him out. I closed all the ways in and out. I let out another yell, "Mother, father let me free. Let go of me! I know my destiny; I know I must die from this. Mother let go of your daughter for she is growing up! Father let me live for your daughter has been through enough for her strength to harm everyone. Mother, father leave your daughter alone to live for she must live longer than you!" I heard my mother's voice, "My daughter forgive us for your pain, but you must go through with this. You must die soon. If you do not die then the world will be destroyed by your power." "Forgive us my dear. We always will and always have loved you," My father's voice came through. I fell to the ground as my body felt as though it was splitting in half. I spit blood out onto the ground. The whole mountain started to shake. I heard Fang step inside the mountain. "I thought I blocked all the entrances," I spoke softly. "You did, but that isn't going to stop me from seeing you die," His voice was loud and deadly. I let out another yell. I heard my bones snap, "Forgive me Fang." He looked at me confused. I put my hands on the ground and tossed him out of the mountain again using magic, but this time made sure he wouldn't be coming back. I felt my eyes start to close. I slammed my fist on the ground and made my eyes open wide. I let out a long and ear blistering yell. I heard many more people outside than there was before. I heard my mother out there yelling for me to let her in, but I ignored her. The mountain stopped shaking. I stood up, and took my sword from its holding place. I jammed the sword through my heart, and fell to the ground.
