1 - Characters Welcome

I am beginning to write a series of fanfictions that is likely to include the Chunin Exams as well as several large-group fight scenes. The series will develop as an alternate storyline to the events of Part 2. With these things in mind, I do not want to use only official characters. As such, if you have any OC's that you would like me to write into a story, please notify me.

I will not be able to use all of the OC's that are offered. I have my own standards for the kind of characters I use and the character has to be very good for me to make an exception. Even so, I still may have to make minor changes to the OC's to fit them in the stories. For this reason, I will soon be providing a sample profile page which will help me better judge the character's potential. Following this profile will improve the character's chances of being selected, but it will likely have to be given to me as a link to a profile or story. Below are a few other conditions you need to consider before offering an OC.

*The character can not be too closely connected to any of the canonical characters. They may be in the same clan but no more closely related than cousins. (This means no marriages, long lost siblings, or long lost friends. Sorry.)

*No next generation characters. These stories will take place soon after the timeskip.

*No all-powerful characters. These characters are no fun to work with and are unfair to other people's OC's. I would also prefer only a limited number of demons or half-demons or demon-hosts. These will have to be particularly flexible if I am to use them, and cannot be tailed-beast related.

Note: For the purpose of the story, I may have to make some characters lose in fights or make minor changes to the character. If I am forced to do this, I will first consult the OC's creator. I will now state that I will do what I can to maintain the integrity of every character I select.

If you would like to see some of my work before deciding to offer an OC, you can read my newest fanfic, Flower of Fire: A New Shinobi Appears by allowing mild violence.

If you are an author and would like to collaborate with me on this, at least as far as character creation, please feel free to let me know.

2 - Sample Profile

This is for anyone who wishes for me to use one or more of their OC's in a story (or for anyone who just wants a good profile setup). If you want me to use the OC, please keep in mind that I will still likely have to make minor adjustments, this just helps me get a better understanding of the character.
