Chapter 1 - I had a dream once

1 - I had a dream once

I had a dream once.

I dreamed that this was a place where no one was judged.

You're not judged for you're skin or you're ancestors.

You're not hated or looked at like you're crazy just because you think and feel a different way.

You're not blamed for how things were before you were born.

You're not neglected by everyone who doesn't understand you.

People try to understand.

People help each other in hardships without thinking about it, including total strangers.

The world isn't full of garbage.

There is no war. Anywhere, nor famine or poverty.

No ones rich or spoiled.

The sick are taken care of with love.

The broken are healed, instead of ignored.

Everyone is equal.

Animals are no longer abused.

No species is endangered.

The earth is clean and healthy.

You're not treated unfairly because you can't do something that everyone else can.

You're taught.

The earth and its living creatures are respected.

The balance is upheld.

No one is blind to the world or each other.

Everyone is loved.

No one kills each other.

The police do their job instead of hurting innocent victims.

Conformity is non-existent. Everyone is himself or herself.

No one is lied to about things that are really important.

Mutilitation of any kind or form is not tolerated.

Everyone is natural and excepted for it.

The intelligent are praised.

And the stupid are schooled.

There are no stupid questions, or stupid answers.

What a glorious dream I had...

This will never be earth will it? ...

I thought not.
