Chapter 1 - friendship

2

1 - friendship

friendship has different meanings to different people. some people could care less if someone ceases to be their friend, and then there are some people care very deeply about some of their friends, if not all. wich one do you think your are? people tend to tell their friends things they dont tell their own families, this should tell you how profound and strong these bonds are. but, someday, it may not be this year, or the next, but someday these bonds will gradually, or suddenly, slip away, and we'll have to deal with a loss (not always death) of a friend, and move on. but, with time, your mental and emotional wounds will heal, and you'll probably create even deeper and stronger bonds with someone else. friendship to me is a very precious thing, and i will not take it for granted. but, i am also willing to make new ones.
